Atelier Cores Da Terra

Selma Abdon Calheira, commitment with the Earth.

Research, solidarity and intuition led this artist to create more than pieces of art: a new life for her homeland.

At the age of 38 years, Selma opens her first studio. She named it Cores da terra (colors of the earth). The name itself Cores da terra was created by Selma because of her lifelong interest in clay and an endless research into natural pigments. This trademark is filled with art and humanity and was built by Selma along her whole life.

Selma's journey has resulted in an amazingly successful enterprise which has brought extra ordinary success to the rural economy of Bahia.

Since the beginning Selma purposely looked to hire economically disadvantaged people, nearly all of whom were unemployed. Men, women and teenagers from humble origins who she patiently prepared and professionalized as highly qualified ceramists. Now they are skilled ceramists who guarantee their own existence.

Through Selma's efforts Cores da Terra has catapulted into the high end marketplace of international ceramics and the result is applauded around the world. This bright journey has been accomplished with hard work, love and dedication, strength and determination. She has exhibited already at the Carroussel du Louvre in Paris, United Nations in Geneva, Expo 98 ...

The Visitor

Design by Guido Deleu

The Visitor was created by Guido Deleu in 1996, as part of a contest to design a sculpture for the main entrance of a cultural centre in Flanders, Belgium. The Visitor embodies a kind and friendly figure. This fits perfectly in the vision of Selma Calheira, owner of the studio Cores da Terra. The pieces are handmade by using only natural elements and colour pigments.

The studio Cores da Terra is well known for developing and educating local artisans, allowing them to stay in their local area.

The Muses

Design by Renaat Ramon

The ceramic sculptures called ‘the Muses’ by Renaat Ramon are inspired by the muses in Greek mythology. They were the daughters of Zeus and Mnemosyne, the goddess of memory. As children of gods, they stayed on Olympus, Parnassus and Helicon, close to the spring of muses, which gave poetic inspiration.

Very simple items will always result in something incredibly stylish.

They were taught by Apollo, god of poetry and music. The Muses embody the arts and inspire creation of song and stage, writing, traditional music and dance. The seven Muses are: Clio, Erato, Melpomene, Calliope, Urania, Euterpe and Terpsichore.

Pinkwin

Design by Guy Buseyne

The Pinkwin designed by Guy Buseyne is convincing because of its balanced and pure lines in a highly stylised form. The palette of black, white, graphite and optional emphasis of gold and bronze enhances its classy appearance. The sculpture is even more striking in group arrangement. This attractive, highly tactile sculpture possesses a warmth typical for Selma Calheira's creations. In her studio Cores da Terra, she uses natural pigments and raw materials only which contributes even more to the warm and authentic appearance of the Pinkwin. Selma uses her craftsmanship and art to create beautiful pieces for us but also prosperity for the local community by using local talent and natural resources.

Boule de joie

Design by Katrin Dekoninck

Katrin Dekoninck lives as a freelance artist and designer in Belgium. As a child she has been raised in a family that owns a furniture business. At a very early age, she learned the basics of interior design & art and developed a passion. Soon, however, she felt that the furniture industry was too limited to her, she wanted to have more freedom which made her decide to broaden the family's horizons. A logical consequence was that she started studies in painting and drawing at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Antwerp. A few years later she took supplementary classes in sculpting and ceramics.

She has been awarded for her artwork several times and has been selected to participate at different exhibitions in Belgium and all over Europe. With her latest creation "Boule de Joie" she expresses in a subtle and stylish way of sculpting, the connection and physical touch between two people: a moment of respect and joy towards each other that expresses happiness. In others words: something that, according to Katrin, is too often forgotten in our busy and hectic world of today.

Darius & Suri

Design by Sofia Speybrouck

The elegant body language of cats caught in two figurines by artist Sofia Speybrouck: Darius and Suri.

Sofia Speybrouck is a Flemish artist who lets herself be inspired by nature and her immediate surroundings. Her newest creation, two playful figurines called Darius and Suri, stems from the love for her two cats. The composition of lines, surfaces and perspectives – all in one single clay plate – totally embodies the individuality of both cats: Darius is his serene and calm self, which is a stark contrast to the boisterous shenanigans of his sister Suri. Despite these differences in character, both cats exude that typical elegance they are known for – a feature that in fact shapes their strengths.

Many of my creations are inspired by nature or my immediate surroundings. That inspiration is then complemented by the emotions and thoughts it triggers.

A porcelain plate designed by Guy Buseyne and made according to traditional methods in the Studio Pieter Stockmans.

STUDIO PIETER STOCKMANS

Working with porcelain is very delicate and it requires time, patience, experience and especially know-how. The pure line, modern design and size of this plate do not make the production an easy task. The strong will of porcelain, the shrinking process and the high baking temperature (1400°C) results in every piece being unique.
